Philosophy

Bandwidth and software has finally reached the point where collaboration online is as or more rich than in person, so we've begun building out the foundation for a new breed of distributed workplace, the Hive.

Traditional workplaces try to build these magic palaces, forcing everyone into one location and lifestyle. That practice is about to come to an end, and open source is leading this change. It doesn't matter how intoxicating the palace is, every coder is part artist, eccentric and ideated. Big boxes and rules about where you can live are the antipathy of a coder's passions.

The Hive is our collective vision of coding from anywhere, we are building the tools to empower a rich collaborative team software development experience. Always available video conferencing, VOIP, IM, presence, and virtual whiteboarding, all connected through smart self-managing project tools.

We live anywhere, dream anything, and code everything.
